A Clearaway in the Lower Price Store to Make Room for Toys and Holiday Goods

The Basement Garment Store is now a wonderful factor in the Scott-Halliburton Company institution. It is the home of new fashions at the lowest prices. The business has more than doubled within twelve months. Racks are now loaded down with a thousand new things that represent style and economy. Suits, dresses, coats, skirts, blouses—all representing the last word in winter fashions, carefully picked in the eastern markets by Mr. Scott himself, were underpriced when unboxed within the last few weeks. They were bought as samples and from certain manufacturers who were invoicing or who wanted to close out all winter goods and give their time to orders for next spring. And now it is imperative that we make more room for the biggest shipment of toys and holiday goods in our history. What is the answer?
